Regulating the Realtors

the Editor of the Post-Dispatch: Recent disclosures make it obvious that the real estate profession has been complacently negligent in policing itself and protecting the invest-ne average citizen knows much The average citizen knows much too little of business and even less of law, yet the price he pays in purchasing a home or deed of trust often represents his life savings. He has the right to expect that his real estate broker is properly qualified find licensed and his operations subervised, the same as his banker periodically is examined by the State Banking Department and his lawyer constantly is under surveillance of the Missouri Bar and the Supreme Court.

But such is not the case. Becom-ng a real estate salesman in Missouri ing a real estate satesman in Missouri is almost as simple as (1) getting a broker to sponsor you, (2) paying $2.50, (3) passing a test anyone can learn with an hour's instruction. Becoming a broker costs $10, and Becoming a broker costs $10, and the test is somewhat more difficult. But once licensed, one can sell millions of dollars worth of real estate without his books ever being examined. He can sell dieeds of trust (as many as five times, it seems) without accounting to anyone.

In short, he can be as honest or as dishonest as he desires—or until someone reports him. And even when the Better Business Bureau complains about him, as we have seen in St. Louis, the local board may do nothing to curtail his activities for nearly six months. Ditto the State Real Estate Commission. for nearly six months. Ditte State Real Estate Commission.

The writer has been close enough business career to offer these suggestions

1. As another recently suggested, salesman and broker

ae bonded.

2. Every salesman or broker who fraws or sells deeds of trust should be registered with the State Banking Department and his books periodically examined, the same as the books of banks and other trust companies.

Clients' frieds should be kept n separate escrow accounts and pe-lodically examined. All reliable brokers now keep funds separate, but there is no check whatsoever by any-one in Missouri to know who is doing so.

4. Both the State Banking Department (or other designated agency) and the Internal Revenue Departand the Internal Revenue Department should inquire into the flagrant use of "straw" names used in real estate transactions. While this is a legal and oftentimes desirable manner of keeping ownership confidential, the practice is conducive to much chicanery and tax dodging and heeds remedying by statutes requiring confidential listing with the state of the true name of every person using a "straw" name. Enforcement of laws governing notaries public also would discourage this practice.

5. Realty boards can promote public reliance by taking an aggressive lic reliance by taking an aggressive rather than a defensive attitude in olicing their ranks. Too few per-ons will risk filing complaints. The realty boards should investigate when even alleged facts are presented to them. The State Bar does so.

Public confidence in real estate brokers can only be restored by more of the belated housekeeping we now see under way. CONCERNED.

An Anti-Trust Victory

The Government has won a notable anti-trust victory against International Business Machines Corp. and a settlement of highly speculative value against the American Telephone & Tele graph Co. A third suit in the Justice Department's effort to open up the electronics field to competition is pending against the Radio Corporation of America.

The consent decree against I.B.M. goes to the very heart of the monopoly. It requires the company, which controls more than 90 per cent of the business, to offer its tabulating machines and electronic computers for sale instead of re-stricting them to rental at prices ranging from $250 to $500,000 a year. It forbids other "burdensome and unreasonable" restrictions by which I.B.M. is alleged to have milked customers for service and repairs. It opens the way to competition by releasing I.B.M. patents either without charge or at reasonable rates, and by making I.B.M. parts and know-how available to rival

These reforms will react to the advantage of among large users of the machines, banks and life insurance companies, public utilities, manufacturers and publishers, and agencies of Federal, State and local governments. The Defense Department, as an outstanding example, requires electronic computers in designing advanced weapons and often as a part of the weapon itself. In general the I.B.M. decree will benefit the revolutionary new technique known as automation.

The A. T. & T. settlement opens up patents to competitors, but the Justice Department backed down on its demand that the company dispose of its holdings in Western Electric, its manufacturing subsidiary, and that Western Electric, which produces more than 90 per cent of all telephone equipment in this country, be broken up into three competitive companies.

The availability of A. T. & T. patents to competitors will become meaningful only if one or nore of the half-dozen independents now making telephone equipment should take on the tough job of challenging A. T. & T. or if some newcom er to the field did so. Clyde E. Ellis, general manager of the National Rural Electric Co-operative Association, which has been meeting here, says the experience of rural telephone co-operatives indicates the independents are cowed by A. T. & T. and offer it no real competition.

Continued ownership of Western Electric by A. T. & T. can only be expected to continue the conditions of which the Justice Department complained in its original suit: excessive rates to telephone users and tardiness in adopting im provements. The Department cited, as examples, that the company had rejected lower-priced automatic equipment made by an independent concern and developed its own "very expensive" system, and that if had held back the hand telephone set, now in common use, for 17 years. In the A. T. & T. case there is thus plainly more antitrust work yet to be done.

Standing Still on Transit

Exactly a year has slipped away since defeat of the proposed St. Louis Metropolitan Transit District plan killed the hope of creating a city county agency empowered to do something about mass transportation. Where do we stand now?

Even the most charitable observer would have to admit that the transit problem is as serious as ever, maybe worse. Fares are still following a rising curve (Public Service Co. currently is after a $955,000-a-year increase), and riding and service are still falling off. What is worse, nobody seems to be doing anything to turn the tide

True, Mayor Tucker and Supervisor Matthews have kept to their word and appointed the city county transit committee they conceived as a substitute for the Transit District, which they opposed. But the committee's progress has been anything but rapid.

Most of its effort has been expended on draw ing specifications for a projected professional study of the problems, but drawing specifications and actually getting down to work are two different things.

At last report the committee, which is headed by James E. Crowe, had set Feb. 1 as the deadline for bids by engineering firms to make the study. After that the big problem will be financ-While Mayor Tucker has given his word ing. that the city is in position to defray its half of department said. the cost, no such firm commitment has come

In the period since 1946 Public Service Co. has enjoyed nine fare increases and suffered the loss of 60.4 per cent of its riders. If that trend is permitted to continue, this great metro politan area may wake up some day soon and find itself with no transit system at all. Can city and county afford to let that happen?

A Capehart-Type Conversion

In proposing restoration of the Federal Re-Board's standby power to impose direct controls on installment credit, President Eisenhower reveals a curious reversal of policy.

Such credit control authority was dropped from the Defense Production Act in 1952, large ly because of the Republican attack on anti-inflation controls generally. When Mr. Eisenhower took office, he sought neither restoration of credit control power nor retention of price and wage control power.

In his first State of the Union message, in deed, the President argued against direct inflation controls and in favor of relying on "sound fiscal and monetary policy and the natural workings of economic law." And one of the campaign boasts of the Administration ever since has been that it took the shackles of "controls" off the national econo

Apparently the Administration is now undergoing somewhat belatedly the experience already attested by Senator Homer Capehart of Indiana. As a Republican out of power he was one of the fiercest foes of direct controls; as a Republican in power he became their champion He now supports the President's request, and we think Congress generally ought to do so too

The argument that inflation controls should authorized only in wartime does not hold water. If inflation can menace our economic stability in peacetime, as it can, then peacetime power to control it is certainly needed.

Nor can we take much stock in the tattered claim that credit control is somehow "socialistic or un-American. If this were true the Federal Reserve system should be abolished. It is exercising credit controls of some sort every day of

If the system can be trusted with the enornous powers it already has, certainly it can be trusted with the additional power to establish direct restrictions on consumer credit in case a credit boom threatens to get out of hand.

The power may not have to be used, especially at this time, when Mr. Eisenhower is urging easier rather than tighter credit in the home building field. But it would be a good thing to have on the books in case of need. That was true in 1952 and 1953, and we are glad that the Admin istration recogizes its truth in 1956.

Monument Worthy of the Event

Republican Representative Thomas B. Curtis of Webster Groves and Democratic Representative Leonor K. Sullivan of St. Louis have introduced identical $5,000,000 appropriation bills for the Government's share of the riverfront memorial. The bipartisan approach is welcome. It helps, too, to have the support of the two Missouri Senators, the other St. Louis Representatives and Representative Melvin Price of East St. Louis. Between them, they should be able to enlist the aid of Representative Clarence Cannon, another Missourian, chairman of the Appropriations Committee.

Unlike some cities. St. Louis agreed not to press for funds until the national budget was balanced. Since the Eisenhower Administration has such a balance in sight, there is ground for Mr. Curtis's promise that funds will be available at the start of the next fiscal year in July. There is a question whether Congress should not vote the money as part of the Interior Department's allocation to the National Park Service, but Mrs. Sullivan is ready to make any needed technical adjustments.

More serious questions are whether the federal appropriation should be held to $5,000,000, and whether Congress should be the artistic censor of the project. Originally the Government was to pay $22,500,000 of the estimated cost of $30,000,000. St. Louis voted a $7,500,000 bond issue in 1935 to cover its share. Costs have risen sharply since then, so why should the Government's contribution to a national monument

In authorizing but not appropriating $5,000,000 last year, Congress also specified that no federal money be used for the majestic Saarinen arch. symbol of the Gateway to the West, the most impressive and characteristic feature of the prize-winning riverfront design. Having drawn the censure of the architectural and artistic world on itself by tinkering with the designs for the new Air Force Academy, Congress should have had enough of acting as a 531-man committee on design. The shoemaker can save himself much trouble by sticking to his last.

Congress is not bound by details of the authorization. Its real objective should be the completion of a monument truly worthy of Jefferson's purchase of the Louisiana Territory and the subsequent national expansion which was so largely based on St. Louis.

No Better Place

Congressman Denton of Indiana is chairman of the House subcommittee that is trying to find out what happened to some $3,000,000 in tolls on the New Harmony bridge. He says the next hearing may be held at the bridge site in mid-February.

The idea is excellent. It is high time the cloak of secrecy about the extravagant, wasteful operations of the bridge commission be yanked away. The best method for bringing the situation to the attention of the entire area-the New Harmony bridge is on the direct route from St. Louis to Evansville, Ind.—is to do the unveiling right in the vicinity of the bridge.

Up to now much of the press of Southern Illinois and Southern Indiana has looked the other way on the subject of this bridge and its expenditures. So have officials of both states. Hardly anyone has been willing to tangle with the bridge commission's chief, Roy Clippinger, All the more reason for the House subcommittee to turn on the light.

A Call to Clean Water

The State Health Department's strongly renewed demand for anti-stream-pollution legislation is a reminder to the St. Louis area to get its own house in order. Immediate cause of the department's activity is an extraordinary amount of pollution of the Missouri River by the Kansas Citys of Missouri and Kansas. This pollution. concentrated by low-water conditions in the river, is requiring the use of three times the normal amount of chlorine, has frequently curtailed pumping operations at Lexington, Boonville and Jefferson City, and has affected the taste of drinking water as far downstream as St. Charles and St. Louis county communities, the Accordingly, the Health Department is calling of commerce, organized labor and civic clubs to meet in Jefferson City Feb. 8 and plan legislation. It warns Missouri cities to complete their treatment plans by next Jan. 1 and to award con struction contracts by two years thereafter. If the cities do not respond, the Health Department says it will ask the Federal Government to intervene.

St. Louis county communities and the city of St. Louis discharge raw sewage into the Mississippi. The area-wide problem is being dled by the Metropolitan Sewer District Com mission and will cost, at a rough estimate, be tween $30,000,000 and $38,000,000. It will have to be closely coordinated with the flood protection works which are projected for St. Louis by the Army Engineers. A project of such magnitude as the combined sewage disposal and flood control enterprise cannot be accomplished over night, and that is all the more reason why it must be put in motion expeditiously and kept moving. In common with many other American communities we have waited too long to make a start, and the pollution problem has reached a severely aggravated form. It can no longer be postponed.

Say Ah

The new dental X-ray machine that will take a panoramic picture of all a person's teeth at once has us open-mouthed. It was developed with the co-operation of the Air Force, which ought to know a little something about panoramas, by the National Bureau of Standards The Government says the new machine will be helpful in the armed services and to communities making mass surveys of children's teeth, and all we can add is that the Government sure said

The Government is most impressed by the speed with which the machine will permit a full-mouth survey to be made-five minutes (40 seconds of it for the shooting) as contrasted with 20 minutes heretofore. We guess we are im pressed more, though, by the panorama.

Panoramic pictures - of conventions, etc.have always impressed us as a remarkable display of the sweep and scope, not only of the camera, but of people. Those present always eem more important by virtue of the panorama of which they are a part.

Not everyone has enough teeth for panorama purposes, but those who do, we confidently pre-dict, will find both pride and pleasure in seeing how impressive they all look, standing at review together,

Kansas Advice on Missouri Bonds

Voters in Missouri have approved a $75.000.000 bond issue whose proceeds will be used for building at state educational, penal and mental institutions. Missouri obviously has done little buildings at its state institutions in recent times. Policy for Those on Probation.

Young first offenders placed on probation by Magistrate Raymond I. Harris at Clayton will be required to be in their homes by specified hours at night, he said today.

The announcement that he intends to adopt the practice of fixing curfews was made following the arrest yesterday of the last three of seven youths who invaded a home in Pagedale last Saturday night, tossed DIES OF HEART ATTACK eggs against the walls, poured beer over the furnishings and wrecked furniture.

Harris said that since there is no state or county curfew law, he will fix the hour at which first offenders must be off the streets during the period of their probation. Curfew hours will range from 10 p.m. to midnight, according to the age of the individual, he said.

GENERAL MOTORS UPHELD

CHICAGO, Jan. 28 (AP)—
The United States Court of Appeals yesterday upheld dismissal of an automobile dealer's anti-trust suit against General Motors Corp.

The court held that United States District Judge Julius J. Hoffman acted properly in granting General Motors dismissal of a suit brought by Fred Emich, River Forest automobile dealer. Judge Hoffman held Emich had waited beyond the two-year statute of limitations before filing his suit.

Emich had claimed General Motors injured him financially by arbitrarily revoking his franchise because he refused to do business with the General Motors Acceptance Corp., a G.M. financing subsidiary.

SPARKLING SNOWFALL

Heavy snowfall and a broken power line resulting in a sparkling fireworks display at Portland, Ore., early yesterday. Massive fall of snow, heaviest in that area for 13 years, brought down utility lines in a number of districts. Moments after this picture was taken the sizzling line came in touch with the automobile and set it afire.

in Action Against Gov. Donnelly.

A suit challenging constitutionality of the King-Thompson act forbidding public utility strikes in Missouri was dismissed yesterday by Circuit Judge Waldo C. Mayfield, who ruled that the St. Louis court lacks jurisdiction to hear the case brought by the union of bus and streetizen operators.

After hearing oral arguments, Judge Mayfield held that the court has no jurisdiction be-Sugge Mayneid near that the court has no jurisdiction be-cause neither Gov. Phil M. Don-nelly or co-defendant Daniel C. Rogers, chairman of the State Board of Medittion, is a resi-dent of St. Louis.

The suit grew out of the strike which halted operations of St. Louis Public Service Co. for three and one-half days last October. Acting under provisions of the King under provisions of the the Governor ordered state seizure of the strikebound utility and designated Rogers as the state's agent to operate the company until the wage dispute was settled.

Claims Question is Moot.
Citing the fact that state seizure was terminated last Nov.
23, he argued that the whole dispute was now "academic" and the cause of action had become moot. In other words, the court was being asked to grant relief to a plaintiff who already had received relief through the Governor's order terminating state control of the utility, he contended.

The King-Thompson law provides that a $10,000-a-day penalty can be assessed against a union for each day it remains on strike after state seizure of a utility. A state suit for $30,000 against the Armigamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and 150tor Coach Employes is pending in Circuit Court here.

With an "era of nuclear plenty" at hand, Twining said, it will not be long until many, or all, Communist satellite countries have atomic weapons just as Russia has.

"For a few years, the possibility of a non-nuclear peripheral action may be with us," Twining said in a speech at The Citiadel, a military college. "However, we are rapidly approached weapons."

Far from being moot, he continued, the question of constitutionality is very much alive because the King-Thompson act is a "continuing threat" to union rights and an impediment to free collective bargaining. In negotiations which preceded the strike, union representatives were threatened with the act and its penaltics, he declared.

As for the possibility of remedy in the state's damage suit, Levin argued the contitutional ouestion may not arise, since the defense cannot control evidence to be introduced by the state. If the state should drop this suft, the union would be denied determination of the legality of the controversial law, he declared.

Martha Carr's REG. U.S. PAT. OFF. OPINION

Today's column is devoted to teen-agers who are invited to submit their problems to Martha Carr.

MET a boy a couple of months ago. He called recently and asked me to go out. Since my parents do not know him I knew they wouldn't let me date him so I made up some flimsy excuse. He called me again so that time I told my mother he belonged to our church young people's group and right away it was fine with her and my father too. But I have a guilty conscience and want to tell them. Please help a TROUBLED TEEN-AGER.

Because you are blessed with a conscience, I don't think you would ever enjoy dating this boy, knowing that you had lied to your parents. You should have told the boy the truth, that they did not want you to For salad, canned pears are preferable to the fresh fruit and combine so well with either oranges or grapefruit. Sometimes the halves are drained and filled with a highly seasoned cottage or cream cheese that makes them appropriate for a hearty luncheon salad. date boys they didn't know, and perhaps your parents would have let you invite him to your home for an evening so they could get acquainted. You will have to make the decision whether to confess this particular deceit to them, but I have an idea that they will respect you for realizing your mistake and giving your word that it will not happen again.

I AM 16 and am very fond of a boy a few years older than I. I'm not sure if it's right for me to care for him because of his age. I've tried to put my mind on another boy but it doesn't work out. I feel as if I'm kind of falling in love and I don't want to make a mistake. Please give

Before you fall so hard that you can't think straight *bout him, step back and take a good, hard look. What kind of boy is he? I have no doubt that he is nice-looking, probably has a sense of humor and treats you as though he Tiked you. Those are the qualities that seem to attract a girl first of all. But is he a hard worker? Do you and he share the same religious faith, or, at least, respect each other's convictions? Is he courteous to you and to your parents and friends? Is he ambitious, honest clean? And do your parents approve of your going with him? Of course, if there is more than just a few years' difference in your ages, I think you'd be wise to date boys in your own group. But the same questions should apply to anyone in whom you really are interested.

IN ANSWER TO Puzzled: Do the boys talk to you and your friend? Do they ask you for dates? That's the only way I know of to determine whether they like you? They'll be hanging around if they do.

Send today for Martha Carr's free leaflet, "Masculine Popularity." Be sure to inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

Encouraging Child

By Angelo Patri

VERY human being longs in his inmost soul to be perfect, to rise-superior to all his difficulties and, secretly, to stand above all others in his full power and dignity. But nobody yet has achieved that goal. There is no perfection in this world. Per-the end of all of us. Yet we keep reaching for the perfect thing, the perfect man and the perfeet child. That helps us to grow and keep growing, provided we keep in mind that it is the effort that counts and not the failure to reach the high standard we set. Effort toward fection means the end of growth, and that would be a perfect job, toward a perfect character, is the very essence of a healthy, successful life. It is that we must encourage in children, and in ourselves, and keep trying-even though we fail again and

CHILDREN OFTEN ARE GRIEVED and discouraged to the point of tears, by teachers and parents who never seem to be satisfied with a nearly perfect lesson or mark. "Ninety-eight in spelling. What was the matter with the last word? Seems to me that you might get 100 in anything as easy as spelling."

This discouraging attitude is very common writes a fine composition. He wrote it in high heat, the fire of creation burning brightly within him, but his penmanship was bad, very bad. And he had a couple of blots. Without reading the composition, the teacher of English said, holding the paper like a banner, "My word. Looks as if a duck's foot had walked all over this. Can't you even be neat? A third-grade child could hand in a better paper than this." But she hadn't read the story which, when she finally got to it, made her sing for joy.

BUT THE BOY had gone home to say, "I'm never going to write another composition for that teacher. Never. Get me a transfer to another school. If you don't, I'll quit It is so easy to see the mistakes and not so easy to see through them to the effort the child made, the degree of success he achieved. And the struggling learner is easily hurt and discouraged and made to feel unfit.

Dr. Edward Johnstone, of Vineland, used to say, "Why Tommy, you have FOUR words right. Wonderful. You'll surely get another one tomorrow. Good boy."

Maybe if we tried that plan, praising the right word, the one fine sentence on the paper, the "B" on the card,

THREE BAD SISTERS," at the ORPHEUM THE-ATER, is somewhat of a misnomer. Only two are bad (Marla English, Kathleen Hughes), and in their schemes to get the millions their father left them, they end

But I think I can say with confidence that although the sisters are only two-thirds wicked, the picture itself is irrevocably, indisputably and unequivocally bad. Bad all the way through. Bad as to lame dialogue, bad as to wooden acting, bad as to inept direction. I trust I have made myself

Those small boys enamored of the Lone Ranger and his Indian pal Tonto on television, can find them in Warner Color and with much better photography in "RED HAWK TRAIL," at the MISSOURI. Others will find their theater notion picture vehicle no better than could be expected.

1. SHOULD YOU BE PROUD TO BE SAID TO HAVE A BIRD BRAIN"?

make quite an effort to be winning sometimes, and slide along carelessly at other times? Do you even choose the right times to be your most charming self?
When too much extra effort must be made, there's the indication that charm is not as deep-footed as it must be to be the real thing. It may even reveal thing attitude, that the would-be charmer shows her best self to the world only when there's something to gain. And often the perfect stranger is practiced on, while those who people her everyday life—and count far more—get minimum consideration. Answer to Question 1.

DR. NICHOLAS PASTORE, Queens College, thinks so, ite says, after long study of canaries, "The bird brain has a surprising capacity for intelligent behavior." The behavior of many people is surprising but not too intelligent. Phyllis, Pastore's smartest canary, has clipped wings. She quickly learned to hoist a prism on to a box and climb up to reach her food. Later she learned to pull a small truck to the right place to get her food. Dr. P. says, "The low esteem of bird brains is not justified."

Answer to Question 2. of course, it's nice to be accepted with enthusiasm by new acquaintances and it's a social responsibility to be pleasant at an introduction but there's no equal to the gain from truly becoming the kind of person so many try to seem at a first meeting, or around selected persons.

Answer to Question 2. True. I'm proud to say that in my old home county (Jennings, Ind.); every man, woman, and child in a population of around 15,000—mostly farming — read almost five books in 1954. In all, they read 73.361 volumes, of which 7662 were non-fiction. When I was a boy there, I doubt that the whole county read 500 books a year besides the Bible and school books. Reports from large cities show the same trend.

Answer to Question 2

TION POSSIBLE?

Answer to Question 3.

In Eugenics Quarterly, Prof.
Stephen Visher asks if you can dispute these statements: "The most creative one-tenth of men are 1000 times as valuable as the average tenth and 1,000,000 times as valuable as the least productive tenth. A small fraction of the world's peoples fraction of the world's peoples have made possible civilization's advances." I can't refute it. Common people have little to do with progress except to fall in line—or to hold it back.

If this same participation could be achieved in bigger cities and if it would spread out into the countryside, how quickly everyone would know about the U.N. and how quickly people would find ways in which to be useful. Also they had such a good Halloween program in Sudan that the town handed over $700 to a reuresentative of U.N.I.C.E.F. several years ago who attended the festival. Sudan also has made clothes collections for different areas of the world.

THE way penalty doubles are "tossed around" in the average game, they have little or no meaning aside from the primary fact that the doubler expects to defeat that bid. But that is not the case in expert circles. There, certain types of penalty doubles carry subtle messages concerning the opening lead, and this makes it all the more vital that the double be withheld when the lead of, that suit is not desired.

If all this seems somewhat abstrues, it will be cleared up by the following account.

West dealer.

North-South vulnerable.

This was one of the "swing hands" in the 1955 World Championship between Great Britain and the United States (won by the former.)

the former.)

In one room, the American East-West pair bid up to six spades in the face of dogged heart bidding by the British North-South, and in further defiance of the fact that when West bid clubs en route (as a cue bid to show the ace). North doubled that call. It was a case of too much defiance, because of too much defiance, because South naturally opened a club against the spade slam, and East was well on the road to sure defeat.

In the other room the British East-West bid the same slam but with a vastly different outcome. The auction in this case went:

West North East South
IN.T. 2 3 4 4
4 Pass 4N.T. Pass
5 Dble. 6 (end)

Dble. 64 (end)

It was North's double of the five-heart bid—the automatic response to Blackwood — that caused the downfall of the American team on this board. Surely, there was no point to the double had to simple announcement that North could beat five hearts, and so it (the double) had to mean that North was insisting on a heart lead against the impending spade slam. Or, at any rate, that was South's thought. But when the ace of hearts was "obediently" led, the six-spade contract became a laydown.

Weekly Report On Public Health By J. Earl Smith, M.D.

St. Louis Health Commissioner THE common cold is the most common ailment of mankind and, although colds by them-and, although colds by themselves are seldom serious, they cause more real misery and time lost from school and work than all other sicknesses combined.

The true cold is caused by tiny germs called filtrable viruses and can spread rapidly from person to person because almost everyone is susceptible and too few of us isolate ourselves when we have a cold.
In addition to colds caused by viruses there are others with identical symptoms that are allergic in origin. It is also true that the early symptoms of many of the more serious contagious diseases resemble very closely the symptoms of the common cold.

THERE are three times a year when colds are especially prevalent. The first wave of colds.

THERE are three times a year when colds are especially prevalent. The first wave of colds comes in the early fall, around the time when we close up our houses and turn on the heat. The second is in January or February when the weather is usually at its worst, and the third is in early spring when the temperatures are so variable that it is difficult to know how to dress. The average cold able that it is difficult to know how to dress. The average cold lasts from three to seven days, but complications—sinusitis, ear infection and pneumonia, among others—may follow.

Many doctors feel most people tend to regard a cold too lightly. The person who insists on going to his job while he has a cold not only risks a more sea cold not only risks a more serious complication but he also risks infecting his fellow workers, some of whom may become more seriously ill than he is.

THE ONLY known preventive or a virus caused cold is: to keep yourself in top physical condition; to get plenty of rest and sleep; to eat a well-balanced diet; and to get a reasonable amount of exercise. Even these good health rules don't always work

It is, however, encouraging to know that as we get older we tend to have fewer colds. Children have about twice as many colds during the year as aduits, and the mothers of school children have about twice as many colds as their fathers.
